HOPE TO CONTROL TERMINAL MARKET

Cost to Put Pork From Farm to Consumer Doubles—Farmer Getting Less.

Co-operative shipping of livestock continues to grow and increase at the different terminals where agencies have been established. At South St. Paul the producers have put into effect a radical method of return in the successful regulation of the supply. When there is a slump stock is kept off the market. Flow to regulate the flow of meat animals to the market centers is a gigantic problem and which eventually will be solved to the benefit of the farmer. It is a losing game to go on forever raising hogs or feeding cattle for a season and then be forced to ship at prices below the cost of production.

It costs as much to get pork from the farm to the consumer as it did now as it did in 1913. The spread between the price of live hogs and the price of pork is now 10 cents in 1913. In July of this year it was 27 cents.

Control Markets. This means that the consumer is paying half again as much for pork products today as he did in 1913. Yet the farmer is getting less for hogs than he was in 1913. Who gets the difference?

"Labor in the packing houses and on the railroads is getting a part of it," reads Wallace's Farmer. "Packers and butchers are getting the rest."

What can the farmer do about it? Mr. Wallace says, "He can come in to such organized control of the volume of production that he can put the prices of his products on a level with prices in general. The other alternative is bearing the situation in meek patience in the faith that in five or 10 years enough farmers will be bankrupt so that the volume of production will be sufficiently reduced to make agriculture again profitable for the farmer."

For the first six months of 1922 the National Livestock Producers' association handled 2,932 cars of livestock, while during the same period this year the "co-op" handled 27,017 cars. The net earnings for refund to shippers for six months in 1922 was $25,524.88 while in 1923 the net earnings were $179,229.67 to be returned to the farmers.

A flooded market can be prevented. Livestock prices like other agricultural products are governed to a large degree by the supply. Spread the supply over more uniformly to meet the maximum demands will bring relief.

MANAGER IS GIVEN
POLICE DATA DAILY

Planning to keep in the closest possible touch with all city departments the city manager has called for a daily report from Chief of Police Charles Newman on all police activities. He is making frequent visits to the fire stations and is in communication almost daily with other departments.

SALES BAROMETERS OF WISCONSIN FARM FINANCIAL STATUS

Many homemade barometers are used to determine the weather conditions in farming. The sales calendar might be used as an indicator of the breeder's attitude toward things agricultural. With the approach of winter close observers not gradually lengthening sales calendar. To keep judges this has but one meaning—the breeder's confidence is increasing. It is believed by those whose confidence is on the upgrade that the demand for cattle will absorb the numerous offerings of stock at reasonably satisfactory prices.

Sales followers have been watching the proceedings on the sales rings during the present month and have expressed satisfaction at the prices paid for stock. They are of the belief, however, that the acid test of the market's strength will come during October when affairs in the selling field will go into high speed.

Wisconsin will step into the limelight during October when sales at Elkhorn, Sept. 29; Monroe and Owen, Oct. 3; Marshfield, Oct. 4; Watertown, Oct. 10; Baldwin and Janesville, Oct. 15, 24 and 30; Watertown, the 17th; Waubesa, the 18th, and Sparta, the 24th, will be held. The cream of the nation's dairy cattle buyers will be attracted by several of these sales.

COW TESTING MEET IN MADISON OCT. 24

Madison—Cow testers from all over the state will gather here Oct. 24 for their annual get-together.

In order to further the efficiency of cow testing records an attempt will be made to have the testers agree on a uniform set of testing rules. It is generally agreed that it will completely do away with the minor irregularities which have crept into testing reports.

There are three associations in the state at the present time who are doing testing work. They are located in Jefferson, Popple du Lac and Vernon counties.

According to A. J. Cramer, who heads the testers in the state, testing will be a long step toward eliminating errors in reporting the production of dairy cows.

Miss Saratoga All Wool Flannel Middy Blouses

We have just received our Fall shipment of the famous Miss Saratoga Tailored Middy Blouses—Made of extra quality, all-wool flannel in navy, red, brown and green. Note these points of superiority in the Saratoga Middies. Made with full blouse sleeve which permits free movement of the arms. This is the regulation sleeve used in the U. S. navy. Most ordinary middies are made with a tight fitting sleeve—not regulation. Deep rolled collars instead of flat, tailored collars, silk emblems, and hand embroidered stars, crowfeet and cuffs and yoke closings. Ivory buttons instead of cheap pearl buttons. Trim tight-fitting hip lines as worn in the navy. Distinctive fabrics and smart models.

Such refinements have won for "Miss Saratoga" Middies the endorsement of fashionable school where the wearing of an ordinary middie would be a breach of good form. All sizes from age 6 to 22. Ask for the Saratoga Middy Tailored Blouse.

JANESVILLE IS 5TH IN CHILD HEALTH

Beloit First City in State Out of 21 Cities Reporting.

New York—Beloit, out of 21 cities of more than 10,000 population in Wisconsin, was the healthiest locality in the state for infants in 1922, according to infant mortality statistics just published by the American Child Health Association, of which Herbert Hoover is president.

Beloit's rate was 19, which means that that number of infants died before they were one year old, out of every thousand births. The cities establishing the five lowest rates, with the rates also, for 1921 and 1922 for means of comparison, were as follows:

City	1922	1921	1920
Beloit	19	20	21
La Crosse	20	21	22
Wausau	21	22	23
Madison	22	23	24
Janesville	23	24	25

Madison, with a rate of 25 in 1921, established the lowest mark made by any of the cities as far back as 1917, which is the year to which the present records revert. Beloit's mark of 19 was second best that year. The highest record in 1922 was made by Manitowish with 115. The Milwaukee rate for the last three years was 80, 82 and 84.

Wisconsin City Average
The rates for all of the 31 Wisconsin cities resulted in a general average for the year of 73.7, which placed the state eighth among the 20 states and the District of Columbia. The seven states with lower averages than Wisconsin were: Oregon, four cities, with 58.6; the state of Washington, nine cities, with 58.7; Minnesota, 11 cities, with 60.3; California, 25 cities, with 64.6; Nebraska, five cities, with 65.3; Utah, two cities, with 71.0; and Idaho, 31 cities, with 72.1.

The Marketing Movement.

One of the results of the present condition of the agricultural problem, out of which good will come, is the attention given by the farmer to the need of devising his own marketing methods.
 Production being an individual problem, the farmer has always considered that marketing was the same, and he should solve his own marketing problems. Possessed of insufficient capital to carry his own surplus stock, he has, with his neighbors and producers of the same kind, been obliged to seek a hasty market and therefore was in the fiercest of competition, with all other individual producers. The market has always been, and under this system always will be, higher at the point of consumption than at the point of production. Once he has come to recognize the need for application of the same rules which guide the manufacturer and others in city business he begins to understand that the group method of marketing is his salvation. There he may be able by combination of individual capital into a single handling concern, to control the distribution of products and the price cannot be determined entirely by the middleman.

Ten per cent of the farm products of the nation are handled by cooperative marketing organizations now. Others are coming into the plan daily. We have seen by dispatches in the Gazette how the potato growers of Minnesota and the foreign brand cheese makers of Wisconsin are being organized for marketing products. It is estimated that 1,200,000 farmers already belong to these cooperative marketing groups. They have learned that merchandising according to fixed business principles and not dumping, is best for the farmer. Dumping leads to speculative manipulation of markets. Wheat is used the year around, sold around twelve months, but nearly 50 per cent of the crop is marketed in August, September, October and November. We often hear of large surplus crops when in fact we mean that the market shows a surplus which cannot be at once readily absorbed but if we apply the figures over the year we find that at some period in the twelve months there will be a shortage.
 It is not the aim of the cooperative marketing organization to arbitrarily fix a price with an artificial basis but that the crops shall go into the markets of the world at such times and in such quantities that they may be fully absorbed. It is to use the same methods of handling crops as are in use in the largest corporations in selling manufactured products.

That is the solution of farm marketing. Legislation will not make individual marketing better. Legislation making farm marketing easier under the cooperative system will aid, and there legislation stops. We cannot have political remedies for economic evils and ills. If that were possible Germany could legislate a gold mark value into the trillions of printed paper marks.
 We are making progress in the understanding of organization on a commodity basis. The demonstrations which have remedied all our troubles in marketing and selling through political methods, will awake to the farmer who has solved his own problems by entering into competition with the world in handling his own products through his own constituted agencies of which he is a part and in which he is the stockholder.

Oxfordville and Spring Valley folks seem to have pretty nearly exhausted the vocabulary of diplomacy.

Ireland.

Ireland has passed another mile stone in its new life as a Free State with the opening of the Dail and the election of a president. The most pressing question is the determination of the future of the 15,000 prisoners of the republican army and government, including De Valera. The Free State attitude is that these prisoners will be released when they are willing to take the oath supporting the constitution and when the members of the republican opposition are ready to come before the Dail and repeat and accept that oath, they will be permitted to hold seats. There seems nothing else to do. How can a man or woman elected as a member of the Irish parliament think for a moment that permission could be granted to sit and act in a body of a government to which they refuse to either accept allegiance or official authority but to oppose and to contest? President Cosgrave is able and strong enough to keep order and we may not have the outrages and retaliatory measures, equally offensive to humanity, as heretofore.

In order to get back into the papers, Shelby, Mont., might change its name to Flumo.

The Seneca, Kansas, Courier-Tribune says it has been advised by a friend that it is no longer "good policy" for an editor to speak his mind about the Klan. Which comment the editor says is the severest condemnation of the Klan.

Every day we have people who live hereabouts coming back from the north part of the state with stories of flat lands, pine wastes, cut-over loneness, and here and there a silver stream or mirror lake. But many of them know nothing of the beauties at their doors, of the perfect panoramas in Southern Wisconsin, of far-away hazy hills, of winding streams, of lakes and ponds.
 No matter where one drives within the distance of a half hundred miles from Janesville there is

A LIBRARY DEVOTED TO CRIME

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C.—The Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice—Uncle Sam's detective bureau—is engaged in building up a specialized library on crime. It promises to be the greatest collection of data on the subject of crime and criminals ever assembled, ranging practically from the slaying of Abel by Cain down to the latest murder. Every book, pamphlet, paper and memorandum that has been written on the subject of crime will find its place in this queer library.

In addition to being a repository of information valuable to the student of criminology, the library will have an elaborate file of statistics relating to crime and criminals. The history, the criminal record, the photograph and the finger print of every known criminal will be in the library. It will be a rather gruesome library and should a man immerse himself therein and study nothing but the books and statistics and exhibits before him, the chances are that he would come out after a few weeks either an accomplished criminal or a maniac. However it is not likely to happen. The library is to be used for reference, not to satisfy morbid curiosity, and will be a useful adjunct to the work of Uncle Sam's sleuths.

The Department of Justice has written to every chief of police, every sheriff, constable and every other sort of peace officer in the country asking for close cooperation in the intensive development of the federal crime prevention and detection system, of which this new library is a part. The National Chiefs of Police association has passed a resolution to turn over to the Department of Justice its national bureau of identification and that mass of data, combined with what the government already has assembled, will make the most complete and efficient institution of its kind in the world.

The library will pay particular attention to finger print records. More and more the criminologists of the world are coming to depend on this system of identification of criminals. The success which has been met by employment of the distinctive markings of men's fingers and thumbs has been astonishing.

Take the recent robbery of $300,000 in federal reserve notes from the Denver mint. It proved a mystery that baffled the police for weeks. Finally the dead body of one of the robbers was found in an abandoned garage at Denver. Every means of identification had been removed from his clothing. There was not a scrap of paper, not a tailor's tag, not a laundry mark. However, federal officials took finger prints and the man was identified as a notorious Chicago criminal. By establishing the identification of this member of the gang, it was possible to track down and arrest the confederates. Had not the man's finger prints been taken and filed away when he was in custody for some previous offense, it probably would have proved impossible to identify him.

Not long ago there was a successful train robbery in the west. The bandits escaped but a small bottle containing nitro-glycerine was discovered on the train. The crime of the finger prints were on this. The print was sent to the federal bureau at Washington and identification of the man who made the print was effected. He was apprehended, together with his confederates. In this case, the attorneys for the defense raised an objection to the method of identification, claiming that it was merely circumstantial and not conclusive.
 In order to satisfy the court the federal bureau submitted to a special test before the judge and jury as to the reliability of finger print identification.

A plain sheet of paper was produced and four or five persons were selected at random to place their fingers upon it for a few minutes. It was not even requested that ink be used; the very slight marking due to the natural oils of the finger being regarded as sufficient for the test. These prints then were placed before the finger print expert, who was absent from the room while they were made. On examining the persons in the room and comparing their prints with those he had, he speedily identified the makers of the marks. The court was satisfied.

A curious case recently occurred in which the finger print method of identification revealed the fact that a man believed to be dead actually still lived. A finger print had been discovered on the collar of a murdered man. The print was forward to the "living dead" to the astonishment of the officials. It was recognized as the print of a notorious criminal who was supposed to have been dead for some time. By means of this identification, the officers succeeded in apprehending the man and convicting him of the murder. So far as the records showed, the victim had been murdered by a dead man. It seems that there had been some combination of circumstances which gave the police reason to believe that the murderer had not died some time ago. Realizing the advantage of general belief of such a report, the original did not deny it. It acted as a cloak for him until the finger print identification system brought him to life again, for police purposes and the ends of justice.

Another recent highly interesting case was that of a man arrested for robbery in Illinois. The suspect was positively identified by eye-witnesses as guilty of the crime. The circumstantial evidence was very black against him. But the robber had left a tell-tale finger print and that of the man who was declared by the victims to be the robber did not correspond with it at all. The search continued, until the suspect was held and subsequently, the real robber was apprehended.
 The finger print system had saved the innocent man, and apprehended the guilty one.

something intriguing and appealing. It may be over by Carvers' Rocks or out New Glarus way or across Walworth county—we have something fine and imperishable to offer in scenery. Know Southern Wisconsin first.

What's a more mountain to the engineering skill of America? Nothing at all; nothing at all.
 The contract has been signed for the six mile tunnel through the Continental Divide making the route from Denver to San Francisco 134 miles shorter. When one may stand in the middle of the tunnel after it shall have been completed, it will be with 2,430 feet of solid earth and rock above one's head up to the dome of St. James' peak. This is to be the longest tunnel in the United States and will be another great achievement of the American engineers.

Uncle Hiram Haversack says that he notices some people who are most particular about buying are least particular about paying.

A South African paper advertises land good for "lucriferous crops." Evidently might refer to some of the first bitten tobacco we have here.

Now we are to have a Mother-in-Law's Day.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

CRISIS
 There are moments of terror and dread Which rob us of reason and conscience; Into every man's scheme, into every man's dream, Comes the time when the struggle grows tense,
 And the thing you would do with a gain,
 With nothing at stake on the shot, It's not easy to do when the prize that's in view Hangs on whether you make it or not.

The test of the game isn't skill, But how do you stand to the strain?
 When your skies are all fair you have courage to spin,
 But how do you battle the rain?
 And what of that moment of doubt,
 When to falter means failure for you?
 With your nerves in control, can you go for your goal?
 And prove what you're able to do?

It's the crisis which makes you or breaks, It's that difficult time of suspense When the end is in doubt and you're fighting it out.
 With nerves that are tingling and tense, Then if your hand trembles you lose,
 And you fall if your eye be not true.
 For all cunning is vain, when you come to the strain.
 If you're not the master of you.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.

What the noble art of astronomy needs today Is an astute business manager of the type of Jack Reams. Here we had a perfectly good middle weight colt and practically anybody could get in on the ranside for the price of a pair of smoked glasses.

Some day, when we grow up we are going to apply for the job of one of those men who hammer racks into a new building a couple of million feet up in the air. That will show our courage. Then when we get it, we are going to resign at once. That will show our good sense.

 the appointment of an ambassador, is busily engaged in working out the myriad details, still to be taken care of following the actual departure of the Obregon government in Mex-

Summerlin is thoroughly acquainted with the situation in Mexico and the problems involved in working out the international affairs between the two governments. He has spent six years in various capacities in Mexico City for the state department.
 Summerlin's connection with the U. S. state depart-1909, when he was appointed a clerk in that department.

 The following year he was named second secretary of the U. S. embassy at Mexico City and a year later was secretary of the legation there. After three years' service there he was made secretary of the legation at Santiago, Chile.

A year later he was made a full-fledged embassy secretary, and on February 2, 1911, he was assigned to the embassy at Mexico City.
 A year later he was made counselor of the embassy, and on January 23, 1915, was named charge d'affaires ad interim.
 Summerlin was born in Rayville, La., November 11, 1872. He studied at Louisiana State university and at the agricultural and mechanical college there and then went to West Point.
 He served in Porto Rico and the Philippines after graduation and resigned from the army as captain of cavalry, May 17, 1903.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
 Noted Physician and Author.

TIC OR HAUT SPASM

In the presence of ladies or a clor-syman the most profane man will talk for an indefinite time and utter an oath, though in his ordinary conversation he swears like a trooper and quite unconsciously.

A tic is a little less than a spasm, a little more than a habit. The word comes from the French. We have no good English synonym. The movements of chorea (St. Vitus' dance) differ from those of tic in this respect, namely that they cannot be controlled by the patient, whereas a tic can be controlled by an effort, just as a habit of smoking can be broken.
 For example, a boy with a habit of twitching or shrugging one shoulder; sit before him with a pin and let him understand that every twitch will be punished with a pin prick, and he will, control the shoulder tic for a long time, though ordinarily it comes several times a minute. If it were chorea such punishment would not make the twitching worse.

A tic, unlike St. Vitus' dance, is usually limited to a single muscle or group of muscles. Blinking one or both eyes, winking or quivering, sniffing, clearing the throat, clucking or making other queer sounds, with the lips pursed together, turning one shoulder, whistling, nodding the head, uttering inopportune swear words or obscen-ities quite unintentionally. The movement or mannerism, however, is almost a habit, as a rule, and the subject is unaware of it unless his attention is called to it.

Most tics have their origin in a nervous impulse and become habitual through undue nervousness. A boy or girl may develop a shoulder twitching tic as a result of a fright or a tic of the face started by inflammation of the eyes or lids, a tic of the neck started by a light or irritating collar.

Chronic my neck is closely allied with tic in nature and origin.
 Often it is started by a temporary "stiff neck" or "muscular rheumatism" of the neck. The local irritation is the trigger which sets off the tic, the subject, of course, being loaded—a neuropathic tendency acquired by misfortune or inheritance. Thereafter the head will unconsciously twist to one side several times a minute unless restrained by an effort which soon causes a severe headache.
 The treatment of a tic must be by physical education. Educative exercises supervised by a competent physical director who has been trained in his work by years of schooling, such as the Y. M. C. A. school of physical training at Springfield, Mass. A few weeks of careful management of this sort will overcome most tics completely.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ray infections from swimming.
 Since you teach that there is no such thing as taking cold from ex-posure or from going in swimming, how do you account for the frequent ear troubles which occur in swimmers? In one case here this summer a boy who went in several times a day got ear inflammation and died as a result of
 it. (A. E. W.)

Swimming in polluted water—water polluted either by sewage or by the excrements or discharges of swimmers—irritates the nose and sometimes the Eustachian tubes, thus reaching the middle ear cavity, where inflammation may be set up or in some cases the water enters the middle ear cavity through a perforated drum. This is another case where the swimmer's loss of the drum should insert in the ear canal a bit of lamb's wool before entering the water. Another reason they should do so is that cold water suddenly entering the ear cavity causes a reflex spasm of the muscles of control—possibly a cause of sudden drownings of good swimmers, popularly ascribed to cramps, but which use absorbent cotton, but wool; if you have no wool, then use ordinary cotton batting, which does not absorb water.

Chicago Baby Likes Wisconsin Milk.
 I saw Chicago mother covered the summer in Wisconsin with my 15 months old baby. In Chicago he never drank much milk, but out here I can get pure fresh milk right from the cows and he takes about two glasses every morning and some in between.
 But he won't hardly anything else here. Is it all right to let him have apple, a tic of the face started by inflammation of the eyes or lids, a tic
 of the neck started by a light or irritating collar.

The liberal allowance of pure, fresh milk is certainly a good thing. A baby a year old ought to be taking baked or mashed potato and other vegetables, cooked and through a sieve, and fresh meat, poultry or soup, and apple sauce or other stewed fruit pulp and cooked cereals, as well as a quart or more of milk daily.

The Abuse of Tuberculosis.
 Would it be safe to board at home where a member of the family died last year with tuberculosis? (C. H.) Answer—The fact that one of the family died of tuberculosis has no bearing on the question. The only question which should be asked is will come into intimate contact regularly with any one who has tuberculosis.

Q. Has an American-born woman married to a foreigner, the right to vote?
 A. It depends upon the date of marriage. If she was married before September 22, 1922, she lost her United States citizenship, but if she was married after that date she retained her citizenship and is entitled to vote.

Q. How tall is the tallest aircraft?
 W. J. L. Specimens of the traffic have been noted the heads of which were 18 feet from the ground.

Q. When was antirachite first used?
 A. It is said that antirachite was sent from near Sanbury, Pa., to Carlisle, Pa., and used by soldiers stationed there during the Revolutionary war, but this is not authentic. Pennsylvania antirachite was first used commercially in 1812, when it was successfully used in treating the bones by the Fairmount Nail and Wire Works near Philadelphia. It was first used in a blast furnace by the Lehigh Crane Iron company in 1838. Antirachite was first burned in an open grate by Judge Pell in Wilkes Barre, Pa., about 1800.

Q. What substance can be put away with tools to keep them from rusting?
 A. Calcium-chloride, if placed in a drawer containing metal, will prevent rusting.

This should be a lucky wedding

 It should be an auspicious day for abundant promise of a season of ex-

There is a good sign for seeking

WHAT HAD GONE BEFORE? Edgar Quenton Bartholomew had two nephews each named the same, and two brothers. One had been absent in Europe for a term of years. He returned to America to make his home with his uncle. Edgar was another cousin, daughter of the uncle. Orpha with whom he promptly fell in love only to learn that the other Edgar was understood to be an accepted suitor. This Edgar, and the uncle, quarreled. In this house there was a mystery in the main stairs, steps other than one's own following the stairs, and one walked and breath of gold air blown on one from some mysterious and unaccounted place. There was no love lost between the two male cousins and it was understood that the one marrying Orpha would be the heir to the uncle's fortune. The uncle is ill and there is no hope for his recovery. Edgar, the story, spends much of his time in the sick room. Uncle Quenton dies suddenly after giving a strong medical check. The will is missing and each is made for the person suspected of having administered poison.

The only object to be seen between the door of this closet and the alcove, and the wall for the accommodation of the bed-head, was the small stand holding his night-lamp and the various articles for use and ornament. It was usually covered with an invalid's bedside. I remembered the whole collection. There was not a box there, nor a book, not even a tablet, nor a vase, nor a bowl, nor a hold the will folded as I had seen it. I had the stand a drawer? Yes, but the contents were not there. Edgar must have handled them. I had come back to my starting-point. And what had I gained in knowledge or hope by my foot on the stairs? Nothing. I had but proved to myself that I was no more exempt than the next man from an inevitable, if the thought occurred to me, for this world's goods and this world's honors. Nothing less could have kept my thoughts so long in this special groove at a time of such loss and so much personal sorrow.

My shame was great and to its salutary effect upon my mind I attribute a certain loosening of interest in things material which I date from this day.

My hour of humiliation over, my thoughts reverted to Orpha. I had not seen her all day nor had I any hope of seeing her on the morrow. She had not shown herself at meals, nor were we to expect her to leave her room—or so I was told—until the day of the funeral.

Whether this isolation of hers was to be complete, shutting out Edgar as well as myself, I had no means of determining. Probably not, if what uncle had told me was true and they were secretly engaged. When I fell asleep at dawn it was with the resolution fixed in my mind, that with the first opportunity which offered I would make a desperate endeavor to explain myself to her. As my pride was such that I could only do this in Edgar's presence, the risk was great. So I would at the test made of her feelings by the story I had to relate. If she listened, hope, shadowy but existent, might still be mine. If not, then I must bear my displeasure as best I could. Possibly I should suffer less under it than from the uncertainty which kept every nerve quivering.

The next day was without incident save such as were connected with the sad event which had thrown the house into mourning. Orpha did not appear and Edgar was visible only momentarily and that at long intervals. When he did show himself it was with an air of quiet restraint which caused me some thought. The suspicion he had shown in the past of a natural revulsion at my attitude and pretensions, seemed to have left him. He was friendly in aspect and when he spoke he did so now and then, there was a note in his tone, almost commiseration, which showed how assured he felt that nothing I could do or say would ever alter the position he was maintaining amongst us with so much grace and calm determination. Had he found the will and had it proved to be the one in which his interests and not to mine? I doubted.

ed this and with caule for the face of those about him did not reflect his composure, but wore a look of anxious suspense that drew from that of sorrow, scarcely as his uncle was mourned by every member of his devoted household. I noticed this first in the face, who had taken his stand near his dead master's door and could not be induced to leave it. No sentiment on watch ever showed a sadder or a more resolute countenance. "It was the same with Wealthy. Every time I passed through the hall I found her hovering near one door or the other of her father's study room, the great doors rolling down her cheeks and her mouth set with a firmness which altered her whole appearance. Usually mild of countenance, she reminded me that day of some wild animal guarding her den, especially when her eye met mine. If the will favoring Edgar had been found, she would have faced me with a very different aspect and cared little what I did or where I stayed. But no such will had been found, and what was, perhaps, of almost equal importance, neither had the original one—the one made before I came to the house, and which Edgar so confidently stated was still in the house. Both were gone and—here a thought struck me which stopped me short as I was descending the stairs. If the original one had been destroyed—as was supposed to have been—natural upon or immediately after the signing of the other two, and no other should ever come to light—in other words, if Uncle, so far as all practical purposes went, had died in the course of time Orpha would inherit the whole estate. I knew enough of law to be sure of that, and I engaged to Edgar, he would have little in the end to complain of. Was this the source of his composure, so unnatural to one of his temperamental and headlong impulses? I would not have it so. With every downward step, which I took after that I repeated to myself, "Not no!" and when I passed within sight of Orpha's door, somehow a feeling rose within me that she was repeating with me that same vigorous "Not no!"

A lover's fancy dreamed on—well, on nothing. A dream, light as air, to be dispelled the next time I saw her. For struggle against it as I might, I was not to reason and experience assured me only too plainly that women of her age choose for their hearts' mate, not the man whose love is the dearest and most sincere, but the one whose pleasing personality has fired their imagination and allied their minds with dreams. And Edgar, in spite of his irregular features possessed this quality of the imagination above and beyond any other man I have ever met. I shall never forget this seemingly commonplace descent of mine down these two flights of stairs. In those few minutes I seemed to myself to run the whole gamut of human emotions, to exhaust the whole range and perplexities of a life-time.

And it was nothing; mere child's play. Before another twenty-four hours had passed how happy would I have been if this experience had expressed the full sum of grief and trial I should be called upon to endure.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 15. When I was 13 my father told me to go away and never come back, which I did. Shall I go back to my mother or stay away? She lives in another state. I am very homesick for her. I have a father and five brothers and five sisters.

LOVELY GIRL
Correspond with your mother about your return. Doubtless she wants you to come home as much as you want to go, but there might be conditions which would make it inadvisable for you to return at present. Through correspondence you will be able to learn what is best to do.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young woman of 25 and I am in love with a young man I have only been with him one time, but he is on my mind all the time. I wish you would tell me what to do.

WAITING: To be made fun of and laughed at are things which very few people can stand with composure. I don't blame you in the least for acting as you did at the dance, but I would not advise you to explain the very well after 4 acquaintances of one evening, and it is evident that you have fallen in love with an ideal instead of a reality. Try to think less about this man, because if you let your thoughts go, you will become very unhappy and learn to take more interest in other people so that you will have something else to occupy your mind. Work hard, exercise and take part in the pleasures which appealed to you before you met the man with whom you are so much in love.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 18 years old and have been keeping company with a young gentleman four years.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise all mothers about the care of their babies, and to answer any subject which does not belong in the field of the doctor.

Mrs. T. H. G. writes: "Will you please explain to me what causes scurvy in a baby and what causes rickets, and what is the difference between them? I have heard both terms used on trips where they could not get fresh food being attacked by scurvy, but how would this possibly affect a baby? Is there any danger in changing to fresh milk and the giving of orange juice which contains the vitamins, the lack of which has been the cause of rickets? Rickets may develop in even the breast fed baby and is due to faulty diet, to lack of sunlight and some other causes. Scurvy is more common than rickets. Scurvy is characterized by spongy, bleeding, purple gums, extreme tenderness of the flesh, and the child will have a row of beads called the "rickle rosy." The child will be a light color, will sweat easily, and the chest may be fat but his development will be retarded or misshapen almost to deformity. The cure is cod liver oil daily and fresh air and sunlight, as well as hours in the sunlight.

Answer
Both scurvy and rickets are nutritional diseases due to improper feeding. In both cases the child is deficient in vitamin C. Scurvy is more common than rickets. Scurvy is characterized by spongy, bleeding, purple gums, extreme tenderness of the flesh, and the child will have a row of beads called the "rickle rosy." The child will be a light color, will sweat easily, and the chest may be fat but his development will be retarded or misshapen almost to deformity. Dinner Stories

When the doctor arrived he found the patient in tears, says the Harvard Lampoon.

"Cheer up, my good man," he said, "you'll pull through all right."

"That's just the reason I am going to kiss you," replied the young man. "If I preferred a man I'd call the conductor."—Penn State Froth.

As the train approached the dark tunnel the man turned to the strange lady at his side.

"When we are in this tunnel," he said calmly, "I shall kiss you."

"Sir," she said slowly, "how dare you! I am a lady!"

"That's just the reason I am going to kiss you," replied the young man. "If I preferred a man I'd call the conductor."—Penn State Froth.

A certain gentleman of the pronounced bunnet complex, in one of our leading southern communities, visited a lawyer and inquired into the procedure of getting a divorce, says the Cornell Widow.

The lawyer expressed considerable surprise at the request and told the gentleman of color that he thought that his home was a happy one.

SCHOOL GIRLS

A mother with two girls in boarding school writes to ask what she can send them in the way of "beauty preparations." Schools are very strict about face powder and make-up, and quite rightly; there are many years ahead for girls to experiment with eyebrow pencils and lip-sticks.

I do not think that a jar of cleansing cream is out of place among a school girl's toilet articles, but some schools object even to this. None, however, object to the useful bottle of Lascaris mineral oil which every thoughtful mother packs into the traveling bag. A little of this rubbed into the skin is as cleansing as cream (of which it happens to be the greater part anyway) and an excellent thing to use before washing the face, and after exposure to cold air.

The school girl needs plenty of mild, pure soap. Gilete is always the best choice. She needs face powder; if she rubs over the skin with a soft, washable chambray before going out, her skin will have no shine at all. If she insists on powder, the little compact cakes will do, the temptation to apply a thick powder being much lessened.

SIX CITIES of southern Wisconsin met on the baseball diamond during the past summer and went through a 16-game schedule. Six cities won an entire season without a squeak. Six cities worked in harmony in athletics and more than 80 young men were thrown into contact with each other in a friendly spirit of rivalry that may never have had the opportunity to do through any other plan. Six cities saw 25,000 persons rub elbows at the baseball parks in the democratic spirit of the great American game. Six cities saw each other brought into closer human contact. Six cities saw their own boys play with them with but one ball something they never had before in like degree. Six cities now understand each other better. Does home talent athletic competition pass?

YOUR TOWN MAKE IT A PLAYGROUND. NOT A PLAYGROUND!

Diamond Sparkles (By A. P.)—Cincinnati advanced in the National by defeating Brooklyn, 4 to 3, while New York and Pittsburgh were idle. The Reds now are the only contenders for the league pennant, as the Braves, even with the extra loss of their games while the Giants lost all theirs, would still be a half game behind. The Reds are four to the lead—Chicago defeated Philadelphia in the National, 4 to 1. Detroit held the Phillies to three hits. Boston won a double-header from St. Louis, 2 to 1 and 3 to 0. In the American League, Cleveland and Washington split a double-header.

Milton Veterans Defeat Boosters

Milton American Legionnaires bunched hits on Pedro Laphere Sunday afternoon at The Pines and defeated The Janesville Boosters by a 5 to 1 count. The visitors put two errors in the first on a fly to center field, the hits counted for another tally in the seventh and two passes and an error added a couple in the eighth. An error and three safe swats counted three for Janesville in the third. A ninth inning rally fell one short of tying the score. By innings: Janesville, 000 000 001—4; Milton, 200 000 10—5. Batteries: Laphere and Hoffmann; Crandall and Hutchins.

EAST TRIMS WEST IN TENNIS MATCH

Forest Hills, N. Y.—The combined players of Philadelphia and New York defeated the best of San Francisco today when east and west met in their annual match at the West Side Tennis club. To William M. Tilden II, of Philadelphia, the national champion, went the honor of clinching the victory for the east when he defeated William Johnston of California in the third match of the day, 8-6, 7-5. Previously, Vincent Richards, who is now making his home in New York, had defeated Howard Kinsey of California in straight sets at 6-2, 6-2; and R. Norris Williams II, of Philadelphia, captain of the eastern combination, vanquished Robert Kinsey at 6-1, 7-0, 6-3.

PACKERS DEFEAT HIBBING MINERS

Green Bay—Displaying a wonderful aerial offensive, the Green Bay Packers, professional football champions of Wisconsin, defeated the Hibbing Miners here Sunday, in the opening game of the season 10 to 0. Hibbing presented a stout wall forward line at the line of scrimmage, but the Packers' aerial attack, which was the key to their victory, was too strong for them.

GIANTS AT CINCINNATI IN CRUCIAL SERIES

Cincinnati—New York and Cincinnati open their final two games here today, the result of which will have an important bearing on the National league race. By winning both games, New York would clinch the pennant. If the Cincinnati team should win both games, it would be a nip and tuck affair.

Rome—Mariano Barner, the Italian heavyweight pugilist, defeated the French heavyweight, Marcel Nilles, scoring a technical knockout in the first round of a scheduled 15-round bout.

Chasing the Flags

SIMMONS, WIN TITLE IN 10-INNING BATTLE

Kenosha—With the Midwest league pennant at stake, Simmons company of Kenosha and Nash Motors of Kenosha met in a 10-inning battle here on Sunday, the Simmons finally winning, 11 to 9, and annexing the league bunting. It was the last day of play of the season, the Fairies of Beloit split a double header at Beloit and thus were used out for the pennant. The game was played before a record crowd of more than 10,000 packed into the Nash stadium here. Three times the score was tied, Simmons getting a three run lead in the tenth, when Sweeney and Jackson had singled, and finally scoring on Crutcher's sacrifice. Simmons scored three runs in the first and Nash tied, 6 to 6, in their half. Nash Hayden doubled with the bases loaded. Simmons again took the lead in the fourth, when Lathrop's triple featured.

Bill Lathrop Hurls Simmons to Midwest Pennant

FAIRIES DIVIDE DOUBLE BILL AND DROP CLOSE RACE

One Carl Cashion, Tarzan of the Menasha Range, came near railing another pennant to the Beloit Fairies-Nash Sunday night. Over in Kenosha 7,000 rabid fans were watching our own Bill Lathrop and Nash trim Nash 11 to 9 in 20 innings of turbulent baseball. So the bunting depended on the results of the second game at Beloit. All Beloit was paying homage to Nash-Nash Sunday night. Bill Lathrop, the star southpaw of the Fairies hurling staff, Jack Wright was on the mound for Racine and he pitched a perfect game, pitched 2 to 0 in the climax.

The former Cub hurler was in trouble in the second. Two mis-pitches but he ran out the lead. Over on third, Nash hit a wild pitch which Murphy failed to catch and then wasn't in a hurry to recover. Nash hit a home run on second base home before the ball was recovered. The umpire ruled the run was "O. K." Some row and kicking. But this time the umpire stuck. Nash proved enough to win the game.

The game rolled along with fast fielding, sharp playing coming up every inning. Four times Beloit put runners on third but Wright and his team-mates stalled off the counters. Sweeney, Racine catcher, and Wright pulled a smart play when they tossed out The Janesville Boosters off third on an attempt of another runner to steal second with two down. Sweeney pegged high and the hits counted for another tally in the seventh and two passes and an error added a couple in the eighth. An error and three safe swats counted three for Janesville in the third. A ninth inning rally fell one short of tying the score. By innings: Janesville, 000 000 001—4; Milton, 200 000 10—5.

MARSTON AMATEUR CHAMP

Chicago—Setting a record for long final matches in the national amateur golf championship, Max Marston of Philadelphia late Saturday won the title from Jess Sweetser of New York, defending champion, on the 38th hole by steady golf and three strokes, which he laid the former champion on the last four holes.

R. Douglas Brooks, professional at the Janesville Country club, was among those in the large gallery who saw Marston trim Sweetser in Saturday's golf match.

Other coaches caught the point at once, and they began using the spiral pass on all formations in which the center passed the ball direct to the back with one use of the spiral pass—unbalanced line and the backs arranged without a quarter-back handling the ball—were developed in the game colored by the arrival of the forward pass.

These coaches found that the spiral pass, when gently lobbed by the center to the back, was a great pass. A few punts that were blocked every season because of the loss of time in making this extra move could now be gotten off.
